Drava Cycling Route

Drava Cycling Route is considered as one of the most beautiful cycling routes in Europe due to its natural splendours and cultural diversity. The 510-km route stretches from the source of the Drava River in Toblach, Italy, crosses Austria to Slovenia and runs further on to Croatia where it terminates at the confluence of the Mura and Drava Rivers next to Legrad.

Drava Bike – Drava Cycling Route in Slovenia and Croatia offers an adventure at every turn. It is divided into six stages, which are between 30 and 50 km long and add a total of approximately 210 km. When taken in six stages or days, it is suitable for cyclists who enjoy their cycling adventures and like to visit the most beautiful corners, feel the pulse of the towns they visit and where they spend the night, and at the same time pamper their palates and indulge in the experiences they offer. Among other things, cyclists that take the route this way will encounter timber rafting, rowing, swimming, gold panning, natural attractions and cultural offerings of towns and places along the way.
